

Great Reviews. Rabbi Dana Evan Kaplan of Albany's Temple B'nai Israel has written a new book, Contemporary American Judaism: Transformation and Renewal, that will be published by Columbia University Press in July. Reviewing the book in The Forward, Lawrence Grossman said that Contemporary American Judaism, "...skillfully portrays the wide variety of untraditional, often idiosyncratic, ways of 'doing Jewish,'" while Publisher's Weekly declares the book an "insightful description of radical changes in American Judaism."

To submit Mazel Tov items, e-mail amquill@atljewishtimes.com

